Part One : Reading Comprehension

(Score: 12/20)

Read the following text, in which the writer speaks of people who unintentionally bother their neighbors. When you are through with the reading, answer in your booklet the questions that follow.

Mind Your Neighbor!

1 The party started at nine in the evening. Mr. Wood, who lived in the apartment below, sighed as he heard the first signs – the steady tramp of feet on the stairs and the sound of excited voices as the guests greeted each other. He knew that the music would begin in just a few minutes and dancing would follow. Luckily, Mr. Wood had brought some work home from the office, which would keep him busy for a while. He hoped this would help him ignore the party that was going on upstairs.

2 By eleven o'clock, Mr. Wood felt very tired. He was ready for bed, but he knew from past experience that he would not be able to sleep. Putting on his pyjamas, he propped¹ himself up in bed trying to read a book. He failed to concentrate on his book as the noise from the apartment above was too loud. He was reading the same page over and over again. Giving up, he turned out the light and buried his head in the pillows in a desperate effort to shut out the noise. He switched the light back on and looked at his watch. It was exactly three o'clock after midnight. He got furious, jumped out of bed, put on his robe, and marched out of the bedroom to the front door of his apartment. He jerked² the door open and headed for the stairs.

3 Gasping for breath after running up the stairs, Mr. Wood knocked at his neighbor's door several times as loud as he could. But no one opened the door. Angrily, he pounded on the door and shouted, "Open up in there!"

4 A moment later, the door opened and his neighbor, dressed in pyjamas and rubbing his eyes, appeared in the doorway. Recognizing Mr. Wood and sensing that something terrible had happened, he asked, "What is it, Mr. Wood? What's the matter? Is the place on fire or something?"

5 "No!" shouted Mr. Wood. "It's all this noise! How do you expect people to get any sleep?"

6 His neighbor looked surprised and said, "What noise?"

7 Mr. Wood listened for a moment. There was silence. He peered through the open doorway. "Where are all your guests?" he asked with a puzzled look on his face.

8 "They've gone home," said his neighbor, opening the door wide and pointing to the dark living room. "We had a small party earlier, and everybody left two hours ago," he explained. "I've been in bed asleep."

9 Mr. Wood could hardly believe it. Nobody was there! Then it suddenly dawned³ on him that he must have gone off to sleep for hours while the party was still going on. Feeling a little foolish and quite embarrassed, Mr. Wood apologized for waking up his neighbor at such a late hour and silently made his way back to his own apartment.

Part Two : Writing

(Score: 08/20)

Many of us face social problems in our neighborhoods, at schools, in the streets, on the playgrounds, etc. Narrate an incident in which you or your family faced a problem. Tell what exactly happened to the people involved and how the problem was solved. Copy the following chart first, fill it, and then develop the information there in a well-organized composition of about 150-200 words. Give your developed composition a suitable title.
